Community Doctors

Cuba's Commitment to Health Care for All

Community Doctors highlights Cuba's medical scholarship program for young people from around the world, but especially focuses on U.S. students at the Latin American School of Medicine (ELAM). Kunle Ekunkonye of Miami wrote, directed and filmed the documentary. His brother, Akin Ekunkonye, graduated from ELAM in July and is credited as the producer of the film.

Kunle is a software engineer, and this is his first film. Visiting his brother at ELAM awakened such passion and interest that he decided to dedicate four years to making a documentary that would help inform the world about this valuable project that has graduated 24,000 doctors from some 120 countries.

Guest speaker: Ellen Karel of Health Care for All - Marin
