

Let's Meet in La Union Honduras!

Coffee Co-op members / La Union Lempira Honduras

17 October 2017

Estimados companeros.

Can a movement with minimum funds but lots of energy and great ideas overcome the corruption and “dirty tricks” of the party in power, at least on a local level? How have activists been able to combat these tricks until now? And what are both sides planning for the last minute to affect the elections?

Join us in Honduras this November to hear and understand the details “on the ground” ---and see the results at the local level of this cliffhanger in the municipio of La Union.

Our TFA delegation will begin with joint meetings in Tegucigalpa with the La Voz/CODE PINK delegations; then we will meet with activists in Santa Barbara and the coffee-growing region of La Union Lempira who have a good chance of winning local elections--mainly due to the success of the coffee co-op and additional projects benefiting the community .

The co-op and the community it has engendered has been one of the few optimistic stories coming out of Honduras in the past 3 years. You will be energized by this group , whether they win or lose, and regardless of the outcome of the national elections.

*You are invited to join our delegation for an experience you will remember forever!
Deadline extended to October 21 / A $300 deposit holds your place.*

Hasta la victoria,

Maria Robinson / Task Force on the Americas Board Member

PS. Be forewarned that the accommodations are not 3-star , and the roads are crummy – but the coffee is great! (And the people extraordinary)
